

1. Linwood Kami

Hampshire-based family business Linwood has launched Kami, a new collection of printed velvets suitable for curtains and upholstery. Embodying modern luxury, the brand's Omega velvet is printed with vibrant intricate patterns. Taking inspiration from a 19th century document, the collection is available in a palette of 19 colourways that spans timeless reds to playful pink and greens. The Topaz colourway – featuring the signature Linwood pattern – uses black alongside vibrant pinks, blues, creams to make a bold statement within any interior. Combining style with practicality, the Kami range is stain-resistant, washable and inherently fire retardant.

2. Rubelli Carnevale

Created in collaboration with Luca Nichetto, Carnevale is a vibrant, colourful collection that takes inspiration from The Carnival of Venice. During this festival, the city comes to life with music and dancing, bold and bright costumes, and masks. The range is intrinsically Venetian in its subject matter and, like Rubelli's other products, display the finest craftsmanship and quality. Coriandoli S represents the festive and colourful elements of the Venice Carnival; Coriandoli XL recalls the shapes of confetti; and Festa is characterised by a sea of stars and inspired by a fabric designed by Vittorio Zecchin for Rubelli, which was first presented at the 1934 Venice Biennale.

3. Creative Matters Tellurian – Mountainscape

Creative Matters design and create custom fair-trade floor and wallcoverings. Mountainscape is a collection of bespoke needle-felted wallcoverings, adding warmth, texture and acoustic qualities to its surroundings. To create the Mountainscape range, felted fibres are permanently interlocked to produce a soft blending of colours and texture – the perfect technique to depict this painterly design. In addition to wallcoverings, the Canadian design studio produce digitally printed wallcoverings for a range of discerning clients. With their emphasis on design, distinction and durability, these wallcoverings evoke warmth and sophistication in any setting.

4. Wall & Decò Wet & Out Systems

Wall & Decò has introduced two new Wet System wallcovering collections and one new Out System collection for 2020. The former is designed for bathrooms and shower rooms, while the latter comprises wallcoverings for external walls and façades. Black & White New Religion is a meeting of opposites synonymous with elegance and refinement, while Melting Walls – enriched with material effects and 3D tone-on-tone – has a strong visual impact in continuous dialogue with the urban landscape. Meanwhile, Utopia Reloaded is a reinterpretation of one of the moodboard protagonists from the brand's Contemporary Wallpaper 2020 range, yet with new chromatic meanings.
